

GROWL!

Your digestive system is always growling even when you can't hear it. Don't believe it? Hold a stethoscope against your tummy and have a listen!

Gurgle Glu

Gurples, Growls, Rumbles.
Inside your body is a symphony!

You're in a movie theater. It's a quiet moment. Suddenly, your stomach lets loose. Rumble, rumble. "Yikes! Where did that come from?" You sink deep into your seat. Well, you can blame it on your stomach. You're hungry, and your stomach is growling.

Esophagus
Have you ever stomach growled when you're hungry? Just thinking about food gets your body producing stomach acid in your empty stomach. The acid is used to break down the food you eat into a really runny slurry.

Stomach
When you eat, your stomach starts to churn. By churning, your stomach helps break down the food into a really runny slurry.
